House of 'Tards - Season 12, Episode 4 -
“Why Can't I Have Chocolate?”

Hunter accidentally abandons his laptop at a repair shop, revealing to the world not only his cocaine habit and fondness for underage hookers, but his involvement in the overthrow of several foreign governments.

Meanwhile, Joe—in between talking to dead people and starting World War III—shakes down Hunter for his 10% and scolds Jill for allowing him only vanilla ice cream. Nudity, violence, sexually explicit scenes.

Designated Survivor (Alternate History)

It is 2032, and elections in America are a long forgotten memory. When Dictator-for-Life Donald Trump and his entire cabinet are killed in a terrorist bomb plot led by the Obamas, V.P. Oprah Winfrey becomes the 49th president. Meanwhile, White House Chef Kamala Harris serves up a word salad.

Skid Game (Extreme Sports, Reality TV)

Contestants in this Squid Game spin-off vie to see who can exterminate the most homeless people in a 24-hour period.

Filmed on location in N.Y.C. and Seattle.

Monster: The Walt Disney Story

Episode 6 - “Was He Really Frozen?”

This riveting 6-part docudrama investigates the perverted life and mysterious death of the founder of the Walt Disney Company, an evil media conglomerate that almost bankrupted Netflix and every other movie studio and streaming service in the 2020s.

The Blight Agent - Season 12 (Drama)

Newly-retired FBI agent Peter Sutherland discovers a mole on his left buttcheek. To save the world, he plunges into a desperate search for an honest doctor in the post-Covid era. Starring Tony Cox (Bad Santa).

Even Stranger Things - Season 2 (Horror)

In this Academy Award winning sequel, Eleven regains her powers, only to discover that she is pregnant. After Murray Bauman informs her that the Upside Down is actually Earth, she races to reopen the portal and escape from an evil anti-abortionist faction.

Eyes Wide Shut (Horror, Fantasy)

Hillary Clinton, now 93, decides to make a record sixth run at the presidency, citing Joe Biden’s dementia as reason why advanced senility shouldn’t disqualify one for the office. Her opponent, Barron Trump, warns Clinton’s campaign staff not to remove their blindfolds because seeing Hillary will cause them to commit mass suicide. Profanity.

The Baritones (Crime, Thriller)

In this alternate ending to the popular gangster series, Tony Soprano chokes to death on an onion ring at Holsten’s Diner. Meanwhile at the Bada Bing Strip Club, rival mob bosses Joey Baritone and Paulie Gualtieri kiss and pole dance in S&M leather harnesses. Nudity.

Don’t Fuck Up (Comedy)

Founder and CEO Reed Hastings spies a devastating comet called A.I. heading for Hollywood and decides to retire from day to day management of Netflix. Upon departing, he passes along a bit of friendly advice to his co-successors, Ted and Greg.

Black Crabs (Documentary, Horror)

Coming out of retirement at age 100, Tony Fauci manages his record eighth major career pandemic, having navigated a grateful nation through the AIDS, swine flu, ebola, Covid-19, and Disease X, Y & Z crises.

Money Heist (Comedy, Alternate History)

Despite a shocking quarterly loss of nearly a million subscribers, Netflix doubles down on woke programming and ad-supported revenues and promptly goes out of business.
